

Tellie

An Original
By Dick Makroney

Her last chance for posterity.

And there was the time the boys Dick and Ronnie were fishing for carp and caught a cow.

All of the family remember Tillie that we raised. We all loved her. She was pure Jersey and a more perverse critter was never born and would run away ever chance she had. I swear she just watched for a chance to put her foot in the bucket when I went to milk
her. Feed was scarce and high priced and on occasions we would put a long rope around her neck and one of the boys would "Herd" her along the side of the road.

Now about the fishing bit. The boys, Dick and Ronnie, had been swimming and fishing in Plumb creek and had learned that if they pulled up some oats from the farmers field they could make a small bundle and tie it with fish-cord but on they had tied some fishhooks. They would throw this bundle in the creek and the carp would get caught trying to get the oats.

In getting ready for the next fishing they had fixed one of these bundles and put it in the garage.

Now Tillie liked oats too and when they were bringing her home in stead of going in her pen where she belonged she went in the garage and got the bundle of oats.

I was close by and saw we had trouble so I caught her and tried to get them away from her but some hoops had caught in her mouth and then some were caught in my clothes so I twisted her head till she fell down and

held her and hollered, "Bring me a butcher knife."

Nellie was in the kitchen door just a few feet away screaming, "No no you can't have it. I won't let you kill her."

I was finally able to make her understand I wanted to cut the cord and not the cow and she gave me one so I got free and reached down Tillie's throat and got the rest of the hooks.

So that was the way the boys went fishing and caught a cow.

held her and hollered, "Bring me a butcher knife."

Nellie was in the kitchen door just a few feet away screaming, "No no you can't have it. I won't let you kill her."

I was finally able to make her understand I wanted to cut the cord and not the cow and she gave me one so I got free and reached down Tillie's throat and got the rest of the hooks.

So that was the way the boys went fishing and caught a cow.